Hubert Barry was born in Auburn, MA on November 9, 1933. His father was town accountant for Auburn and involved in local politics. Called principally by the nickname "Rod" throughout his life, Barry received his Bachelor and Master degrees Worcester State University, which was then called Worcester State Teachers College. Barry taught in the Auburn school system for 41 years. During his service as a teacher, Barry started the Outdoor Science Program for Auburn Middle School in the 1970s. Barry worked at Saint Vincent's Hospital in Worcester for nearly two decades as an administrative aid and counselor in the psychiatric ward. He did this simultaneously in his years of teaching. He was both a member and lector at North American Martyrs Church for several years. Barry met his wife, Mary Elizabeth "Bettie" (Coyle) Barry, at Saint Vincent's Hospital, where she was a long-time nurse. Bettie died in 2004. He and his wife never had children. Hubert Barry died on February 14, 2010.
