Historical/Biographical Notes

William Bullard, 1876-1918, was a Worcester native, sometime Brookfield resident and itinerant photographer with studios for portrait photography at 5 Mayfield Street in Worcester during the early years of the 20th century. He took numerous photographs of building and sites in Worcester and other communities which provide important documentation of much of Worcester as it was around 1900. He is said to have hung himself in 1918. His negatives (glass plate) came into possession of Dennis LeBeau of East Brookfield, who has preserved them as the Bullard Archive.

Scope and Content

The collection comprises 8 x 10 prints made from the original glass plate negatives of Worcester schools; commercial and industrial buildings; fire houses, and more. The original photographs were taken between 1896 and 1916. The collection is arranged topically.
