Historical/Biographical Notes

The Merrifields were a prominent Worcester family for generations. Alpheus Merrifield, youngest child and only son of Timothy and Mercy Merrifield, was born in 1779 in Sherborn, MA, but moved to Worcester the following year. He married Mary Trowbridge (1783 – 1871), daughter of William and Sarah Rice Trowbridge in 1804. They had eight children, the second child/oldest son being William Trowbridge Merrifield (1807 -1895). Alpheus was a successful builder and sawmill operator who constructed brick tenements on Bridge and Summer Streets in Worcester. He also had businesses in South Carolina and Georgia and was Deacon in the Second Congregational Church and a Worcester selectman (1829jk-1832). He died in 1853.

William T. Merrifield followed his father into the contracting business and was very successful. He established a facility on Union Street in Worcester, manufacturing sashes, shutters and blinds. He set up a steam-driven sawmill in Princeton, MA for logging operations. Merrifield won the contract to build Lancaster Mills in Clinton, MA, which was then the largest textile mill in the New England. With profits from this job, he invested in more property on Union and Exchange Streets in Worcester, where he built brick industrial buildings which he leased for manufacturing and supplied power to with overhead belts connected to steam engines. The Merrifield buildings have been called the first industrial park in America. A fire in 1854 in the buildings resulted in the loss of 50 different businesses. Merrifield immediately reordered a new steam engine and rebuilt the buildings, which reopened in seven months. The Worcester Civic Center is now located on the site. William served 10 years as trustee of the State Lunatic Hospital and was president of the Mechanics Association for a number of years.

In 1830 William married Margaret Brigham (1816 -1846) (daughter of Jabez and Nancy Kingsbury Brigham). They had four children, two daughters, Anne and Catherine who both died as young women, and two sons William Frederick and Henry Kingsbury. In 1847 he married Maria Caroline Brigham (1820 – 1891) (daughter of Charles and Susannah Baylies Brigham of Grafton). They had three children, a son Andrew who died in infancy and two daughters, Maria Josephine (1854-1878) and Harriette (1856 – 1951). Merrifield first built a house on Harvard Street, and then built a mansion on Highland Street, between West and Park Avenue, which became known as “23 Trowbridge.”

In 1884 Harriette Merrifield married William Trowbridge Forbes (1850 – 1931) of Westborough, MA. In addition to raising her children, first in Westborough and then at her childhood home at 23 Trowbridge Street, Worcester, Harriette pursued interests in photography and New England history. She published several works including New England Diaries, 1602 – 1800: A Descriptive Catalogue of Diaries, Orderly Books and Sea Journals (Topsfield, MA: The Perkins Press, 1923) and Gravestones of Early New England and the Men Who Made Them, (Boston, MA: The riverside Press for Houghton Mifflin, 1827). She assisted her daughter Ester with historical research.

Judge William Trowbridge Forbes was raised in Westborough on the family farm and graduated from Amherst College in 1871, taught in Turkey for three years at Robert College and traveled extensively in the Near East. During his time in Turkey he participated in a geological survey and discovered many new fossils. In 1874 he returned to Worcester to study law and was appointed Justice of the First District Court of Eastern Worcester County, which position he resigned in 1879 to practice law. He served in the State House of Representatives (1881-82) and the State Senate (1886-87) and in 1888 was appointed Judge of the Worcester County Court of Probate and Insolvency in which capacity he served for 36 years. He held many offices and memberships first in Westborough and then in Worcester, including American Antiquarian Society, Worcester Society of Antiquity, New England Historic Genealogical Society, Worcester Natural History Society, Shakespeare Club, Massachusetts Society of the Sons of the Revolution, Worcester Art Museum, Vice-President of the People's Savings Bank.. He authored a history of Westborough included in Hurd, D. Hamilton, Worcester County History with Biographical Sketches, v. 1, Philadelphia: Lewis & Co., 1899.

Harriette and William had six children, one of whom died in infancy in 1893). The two eldest were sons: William Trowbridge Merrifield Forbes (1885-1969) and Allan White Forbes (1886 – 1974). Both graduated from Amherst College and never married. William T. M. Forbes taught at Cornell and was an entomologist, specializing in Lepidoptera and Coleoptera who authored several books on those subjects. He retired to 23 Trowbridge. Allan was an electrical engineer and businessman in Worcester who taught at Worcester Polytechnic Institute and lived at 23 Trowbridge for most of his adult life. Cornelia Brigham Forbes (1884 – 1979), the eldest daughter of Harriette and William, graduated from Vassar College, earned an MA at the University of Wisconsin, never married and resided at 23 Trowbridge her entire life. Katherine Maria Forbes Erskine (1889 - 1990) was a university trained physical education professor, graduated from Vassar College and did graduate work at Wellesley College, married Linwood Erskine in 1918, had four children, and resided in Worcester her entire life. She was very active in civic affairs, becoming a charter member of the League of Women Voters, a member of the Worcester School Committee, and the President of the YWCA. Her husband became associated with Judge Forbes and was hired by Judge Forbes to run the Merrifield Shops. He also served as the president of the Worcester Historical Society (now the Worcester Historical Museum)

The youngest daughter, Esther Louise Forbes (1891 -1967) was the noted author of Newberry Award winning Johnny Tremain, the Pulitzer Prize winning Paul Revere and the World He Lived In, and other works of fiction and nonfiction. She attended Bradford Academy, a junior college in Bradford, MA and the University of Wisconsin, returning to Massachusetts to take an editorial position at Houghton Mifflin Company in Boston. In 1926 she married Alfred Hoskins, an attorney, moved to New York and published her first novel. She and Hoskins divorced in 1933 and Esther returned to Worcester to pursue her writing career. In 1949 she was elected to the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and became the first female member of the American Antiquarian Society.

Judge William Trowbridge Forbes was the son of Ephraim T. Forbes of Westborough, MA and Catherine White of Roxbury, MA. Catherine's father was William White who eventually settled in Westborough, MA.
