Historical/Biographical Notes

The Congregation Sons of Jacob was built in 1923 at 104 Harrison Street in Worcester by immigrants from the small shtetl of Smolian in Russia. Its principal rabbi was Zorach Hurowitz who was called to Worcester from Smolian in 1906 to serve a small congregation on Pond Street. He was rabbi until his death September 7, 1944. The Congregation remained active until the mid-1960s, when the gradual migration of Jewish life in Worcester from the East side to the West side of the city was finally completed. An original stained glass window was removed to Temple Sinai in October 1979. In June 1980, the Sons of Jacob merged with the Tifereth Israel Synagogue at 22 Newton Ave and the original synagogue on Harrison Street was razed.

Scope and Content

Collection includes three manuscript ledgers of marriage records kept by Rabbi Hurowitz (1907 – 1932). Also included are receipt books and invoices sent to the Synagogue.
