Historical/Biographical Notes

The Worcester State Hospital was founded in 1830 on Summer Street in Worcester, Mass. Its first superintendent, Samuel Bayard Woodward, is credited with much of its early success. His achievements in Worcester were of such a high order that his professional colleagues elected him in 1844 as the first president of what is today the American Psychiatric Association. The hospital went through many expansions over the years and was considered to be at the forefront of mental health research for many years. A steady decline in patients and altering attitudes about mental health during the 1970s weakened the hospital and reduced the number of patients from 4,000 to 600 by the 1980s when only a few of the many buildings were being used. A fire in 1991 destroyed many of the older buildings.

Scope and Content

The collection comprises approximately 650 photographs of employees, patients, recreational activities, classes, farmlands and buildings of Worcester State Hospital. Most of the photographs are 8 x 10 in., and were taken between 1920 and 1950.
