Collection Information

Abstract:

This collection consists of correspondence with and related to Grace A. (Parker) Cardwell. The letters are primarily between Grace and her husband John C. Cardwell, prior to and during their marriage. Their early letters address their philosophies on love and marriage, John C. Cardwell's experience growing a medical practice in Brooklyn, NY and, after their marriage, discuss her illness and time in Europe and Saranac Lake, NY for tuberculosis treatment. This collection also contains some correspondence of Grace's father and other relatives.

Historical/Biographical Note:

Grace Ann Parker was born in Worcester, Massachusetts on March 26, 1866, to Henry L. Parker and Isabel H. (Moran) Parker. She attended Wellesley College and graduated from the Massachusetts Normal Art School, now known as MassArt, in Boston in 1888. She was an instructor in drawing at Worcester Public School in the 1890s, including at the New English High School in Worcester, Massachusetts.

Grace married John C. Cardwell on June 10, 1897. John was a doctor who lectured in physiology at Clark University and Harvard Medical School before moving to Brooklyn, New York, where he began his own practice and served as a professor at Long Island College Hospital. He died on August 3, 1940, in Brooklyn, New York.

Grace spent time in Europe in 1906 and at the Adirondack Cottage Sanitarium at Saranac Lake, New York from 1907 to 1908 for tuberculosis treatment. Grace died on February 4, 1941, in Brooklyn, New York.

Scope and Content:

The Grace Parker Letters collection primarily contains letters with or related to Grace A. (Parker) Cardwell, beginning with letters with her family. In 1890, Grace began correspondence with Doctor John C. Cardwell, whom she would marry in 1897. Their letters discuss Grace's life in Worcester, John's experiences in Boston, MA teaching at Harvard Medical School and beginning his medical practice in Brooklyn, NY, and planning and recollecting John's visits to Worcester, MA. They also concern Grace and John's feelings for each other as well as their philosophies of love and marriage, science, and contemporary art and literature.

After their marriage, there is significant correspondence with John during Grace's time at hotels in Switzerland, Austria, and Italy for her health in the spring of 1906 and later her time at the Adirondack Cottage Sanitarium at Saranac Lake, NY in the Adirondacks from summer 1907 until the end of 1908, under the care of Dr. Lawrason Brown for tuberculosis.

This collection also includes correspondence between Grace and her father Henry L. Parker, her sister Gertrude, her brother Will, and friends. It also contains a small number of letters to John C. Cardwell from colleagues and friends. Later family correspondence includes condolences and thank-you notes from recipients of the memorial speech her brother Henry L. Parker wrote for their father after his death in February 1910.

The end of the collection consists of postcards and short letters with or related to Grace's descendants after her death.
